THANKS TO YOU,

Luis and his mom have found stability.
Meet Luis & His Mom

Luis’ mom escaped political persecution in Venezuela after being forced to participate in pro-regime activities. At the time, she was an engineer working for a government petroleum agency, her husband had left, and she was five months pregnant. She sought asylum in the United States where several months later, Luis was born.

Finding work, child care and a safe place to live was challenging, especially since she did not know anyone. However through the service of Catholic Charities Family Connections, Family Immigration Services, and English as a Second Language (ESL) classes, she found stable work and employment. Luis is safely in affordable day care which allows her to work full time.

While she awaits her asylum hearing, she is an active member of our community, legally working and paying taxes. She has been in ESL classes for several years where she is a star student. While she does receive some emergency support from Family Connections, she is proud that Luis is thriving, and that she has been able to integrate into our community. Catholic Charities stands in solidarity with this family and hundreds of others to fight against the odds.

Sarah grew up in a middle-class family and had big dreams. Once she graduated college, she married and had children. She says, "things didn’t work out so well." Her family moved from apartment to apartment, then into her mother’s home until she was able to get back on her feet.

By the time Sarah found Catholic Charities, she says "I felt defeated, hopeless, dark, negative and angry as to why this would happen to me. I felt lost as a mom, but when I came to Catholic Charities, I was treated with nothing but respect, kindness and empathy. It changed my life and how I view life."

"The support I received from Catholic Charities empowered me. They were a hand up, not a hand out. I was able to secure an apartment - the first one I have had on my own for more than six months!" Sarah also received a car from her church which helped her get to her job as a child care worker, take her children to medical appointments, and to school.

Through hard work, boldness and grit, Catholic Charities has helped Sarah become more self-sufficient. Sarah now has the knowledge to access resources in times of crisis and has gained confidence in her abilities and gifts. She feels more equipped to encourage and parent her children. She says, "I feel way more confident in myself...and my ability to be a mom."
Shirley came to Castle Rock about six years ago. She says, "I didn’t have much, I had lost everything and life wasn’t looking great for me. I had lost the ability to think there could be anything better. It seemed like every step I took forward, there were 10 steps back."

The final straw came when she was on her way home from her job at 7 a.m. and her car just quit. Shirley had been working with Catholic Charities so she called and asked if there was anything they could do to help with her transportation needs. It just so happened that a car had been donated that day and since Shirley had made so much progress, she was chosen to receive the car.

Shirley said, "That was when things changed for me. I decided to not let things make me go backward and give up. It was like a blessing from God. The folks at Catholic Charities saw what I had a long time ago in my life that I had forgotten. If it wasn’t for them believing in me - that I wouldn’t be in that situation my whole life - I just don’t know where I would be."

Shirley kept working and eventually had saved enough to buy a new car. She donated the car which had come into her life at just the right time back to Catholic Charities so someone else could get a fresh start. "I have so much to look forward to in my life now because of Catholic Charities. I want to thank God, because Catholic Charities also brought that back to me; they gave me back the ability to believe again." That’s what love and service is all about.
Prison to Star Employee

Sam had been incarcerated at a young age. When he was released from prison, it was difficult finding and maintaining work. In fact, he had just lost a minimum wage job where he did not feel confident or successful. He wanted to feel that he belonged, which led him to attend a job fair at the Hanifen Employment Center. He arrived in slacks and a sport coat with resume in hand, interviewed with several employers, talked with staff, and after a background check, landed a position with Industrial Recyclers. They knew his background, but believed in giving second chances. And it has paid off for everyone.

"His attitude at work is contagious," said one of Sam's bosses. Another boss exclaimed, "He is beaming, and I wish we could find more Sams to work here." Sam found the job he was looking for: one that was rewarding, where he was appreciated for his skills and the person he was, and one that pays a living wage. His new job will give him the opportunity to continue to grow and be promoted.

Sam wants to take his experience and talk to students about what mistakes they can avoid in their lives. He knows firsthand how difficult it can be to move forward when some mistakes just will not go away - like a police record that makes it difficult to start fresh. His newfound success is his way of giving back. He wants to go the extra mile to help someone else stay out of trouble. It’s all about building trust and relationships.

Sam found a new life simply by attending a job fair at the Hanifen Employment Center.
The Hanifen Employment Center (HEC), formerly the Life Skills & Career Development Center, filled 176 jobs in the last fiscal year. That is a record since the first job placement in July 2015. At the end of the FY 18/19 (June 30, 2019), 522 jobs have been filled to date.

New classes and individual mentoring ensures anyone walking through the doors of the HEC can get the skills they need to apply for a job. Employers work with Catholic Charities to fill open positions, including apprenticeship programs so clients have an opportunity to be hired for life-changing positions.

HEC staff builds relationships with employment partners who attend monthly fairs and hiring events. Clients who need to develop or improve specific skills are hired in Catholic Charities Marian House Works! program. Here they build confidence and learn skills needed to move to a full-time position in the community.

The Castle Rock office celebrates six years of service to Douglas, Elbert and Park Counties, and moved to larger offices this year. This enabled program expansion and more help for families in need. In fiscal year 2018/19, 641 unique families were served.

The new office has allowed Catholic Charities (CC) to continue working on innovative and collaborative solutions that go beyond the traditional "hand-outs" and address the root causes of poverty. Critical collaborations with Douglas County and other human service providers, and a team approach were considerations in the move, particularly the ability to co-locate with Tri-County Health and Alternatives Pregnancy Center. Counseling options were also expanded by leasing office space to Heart Centered Counseling. Combined with Denver Counseling Associates, CC has robust counseling options for our clients.

A training room with audio/video capabilities was incorporated, which has hosted English as a Second Language classes and Financial Literacy trainings. Job skills classes and other skill-based opportunities are planned for the future.
